Church Row, Hampstead. One of the most perfect specimens of Georgian architecture in or near London. It was built about the middle of the eighteenth century, the date of the present church, St. John's (which stands on the ancient St. Mary's) being 1745. Many notable people have lived or visited in Church Row. Among them may be mentioned John James Park, antiquary, and author of the first history of Hampstead, Mrs. Barbauld, Lucy Aiken, Dr. Johnson, Wordsworth, Sir Walter Scott, Romney, and Constable (whose grave is close by in the old churchyard).
